

Active Shooter School Defense

A Proactive and Realistic Approach

John Deans has studied active shootings for over 20 years. He has trained under numerous former law enforcement and military instructors for over a decade specifically in stopping active shooters. After studying school mass shootings, John put together a three phase program to help school districts defend against active shooters. His Deans Defensive Shooting facility is geared for robust tactical training enabling teacher sheepdogs to become members of School Guardian Teams trained to stop the evil wolves. The Six Second resolution of the West Freeway Church shooting by a civilian Shepherd Team member in December of 2019 was proof positive that armed and trained civilians on site can provide the quickest end to a mass killing event.

Phase I – The Briefing

This eye-opening 45 minute presentation is a sobering experience to the school board leadership with realistic data and real-world solutions. City Police are 4-5 minutes away – when the most killing from active shooters take place. County Deputies are 10-20 minutes away – even worse end results. This presentation vividly makes the case for the creation of the School Guardian Teams .

Phase II – Live Fire Training

After the School Guardian Teams have been chosen from existing Texas LTC holders, the ground training begins at the Deans Defensive Shooting range. Every drill builds the accuracy and confidence of the team members to use force and deadly force to end the threat of an active shooter. From moving targets, to threat assessments in the live fire shoot house, to long distanced precision shot placement, the team members will be trained to eliminate the shooter and then begin treatment on injured victims before LE and EMS arrives.

The final drill will be a stress induced active shooter scenario with numerous sources of stimulus to train the Guardian to stop the threat under duress. Both the Team Member and killer steel target will be moving with simulated return fire to be managed – this is SERIOUS training.

On Range – 4-5 Hours ($250 per Team Member)

Phase III – In School Scenario Training

The on-site scenario training is based on role playing with Deans being the active shooter, mentally disturbed person, raging drunk, or just a upset student that does not seem right. Deans Defensive Shooting provides airsoft weapons in place of real firearms for safety, but you still know when you get hit.

20+ live scenarios may be played out in areas such as the parking lot, entrances, classrooms, hallways, offices and cafeterias. No two action scenes or outcomes will be the same. Situation awareness and threat assessment are key in these drills along with decision making on levels of force or deadly force.
